

PSYCHOLOGY OF ETHICAL LEADERSHIP GRADUATE CREDIT CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

Person-in-Charge	Greg Edward Lovisky
Program Code	PSYELD
Campus(es)	World Campus

The Psychology of Ethical Leadership Graduate Certificate will help students learn how to build ethical organizational cultures based on diversity, equity, and respect. Students will learn how to assess difficult ethical situations and dysfunctional behaviors, taking appropriate steps for preventing and resolving such situations. Lastly, students will learn how to lead collaboratively and leverage the talents of all individuals in service of ethical, principled organizations.

This certificate is offered as the second in a series of three stackable credentials building toward the M.P.S. in Psychology of Leadership. It follows the Psychology of Leadership Foundations certificate, which is the first of the stackable credentials, and precedes the third of the stackable credentials, which is for the Psychology of Team Leadership. While it is not a stand alone certificate, completing this as the second of the three stackable certificates also would provide a firm foundation with which to enter other programs with a leadership emphasis. It is intended for those early in their careers who wish to be competitive for promotions into leadership roles in the future. It also is intended for those early or midway in their careers who are in leadership roles and aspire to advance; are in ethics and compliance, leadership development, organizational effectiveness, or human resources roles; and who work directly with leaders and teams.
