

JAZZ PERFORMANCE, MINOR

Requirements for a minor may be completed at any campus location offering the specified courses for the minor. Students may not change from a campus that offers their major to a campus that does not offer their major for the purpose of completing a minor.

Program Description

Administered by faculty from the College of Arts and Architecture's School of Music, the minor in Jazz Performance is designed to give Music majors and non-Music majors experience in the performance, theory, and history of jazz music.

Students will perform in a variety of the jazz ensembles offered by the School of Music, take private instruction in jazz improvisation with a designated jazz instructor on the School of Music faculty, and take courses in jazz history, improvisation and pedagogy. For Music majors, the Jazz Performance minor will provide: 1) a course of study in jazz at a higher level and with more detailed instruction as a supplement to their studies in classical and traditional music; 2) training in a very important and prevalent musical genre for careers in performance or teaching; and, 3) for those students who may already participate significantly in the jazz offerings, an official recognition on the student record of detailed study in jazz that will provide credentials when seeking employment.

For non-Music majors, the Jazz Performance minor will provide: 1) an opportunity to continue formalized study in an area in which they have been highly active before college, such as music lessons, ensembles, and choirs 2) an opportunity to build music into their lives as a stimulating and balancing influence; and, 3) for those students who may already participate significantly in the jazz offerings, an official recognition on the student record of study in jazz that will indicate versatility and artistic activity when seeking employment in another field.

For both Music majors and non-Music majors, the Jazz Performance minor will provide a deeper musical experience in and greater awareness of a musical art form that derives from African-American culture.

You Might Like This Program If...

You are interested in performing, recording, composing, creating and arranging within various jazz and contemporary music genres, this minor might be for you. Instruction in the history, theory and the musical skills needed to improvise and create is delivered in this 18 credit minor. This minor provides an opportunity for non-majors who were active in their high school music programs to continue and deepen their experience in the JCM genres. Activities such as: jazz big band, small combos, jazz vocal ensemble, recording projects and various performances, on and off campus, are a part of the experience. Music majors do not have to audition for this minor, but must declare it as well as fulfill the required coursework. Non-majors must audition for the minor with an aptitude level approximately equivalent to that which is required to participate in the school of music JCM ensembles.
